BOARD OF ED

Open the Books. Raise the Bar.

I'm an MHS parent running for the Board of Education to promote achievement, transparency and accountability in the Montclair Public Schools. My wife, Jen Dorr, grew up in town, and our kids went through Nishuane, Hillside, Glenfield and the High School – the same schools she did. Now I have one in college and a senior at MHS. I'm running because the fiscal crisis has made our community more vulnerable than ever, and we need to be more transparent than ever. That's why I built njschoolinsights.com – so every family in New Jersey can see where their district stands, ask better questions, and work together to move our children forward.

Achievement – Building on what makes Montclair great

- Montclair has an amazing community: dedicated teachers, engaged families, and talented, curious students.
- My priority – Work with the superintendent to set clear, shared goals for student achievement, and give the backing and resources needed to reach them.

Transparency – Our money, in plain sight

- The fiscal crisis broke the community's trust. Rebuilding it takes openness about where our money goes today and honesty about where we're headed.
- My priority – Regular, simple financial updates that show whether we're on budget, getting results for students, or heading towards a problem.

Accountability – Keeping our promise

- Our schools make a promise to students and the community: an excellent education for every child, delivered responsibly. Accountability means being honest when we fall short.
- My priority – An annual report to the community, so we can see where we lead and learn from those doing better.
